Firm Overview

Agecroft Partners is a global award winning consulting and third party marketing firm which specializes solely in the alternative investment arena with a particular focus on hedge funds.

For hedge funds, Agecroft Partners focuses on:

- Helping fund managers enhance their product offering
- Improving the way managers articulate their differential advantages across each of the evaluation factors investors use to select hedge funds
- Developing a successful marketing strategy
- Creating a PR, advertising, and conference strategy
- Providing valuable intelligence regarding the global hedge fund market place
- For a select few, raising assets through intelligent deployment of our industry knowledge by taking a consultative approach towards developing relationships with institutional investors

For investors, Agecroft Partners focuses on:

- Providing information that enhances investors' due diligence process
- Identifying industry trends among hedge funds and institutional investors, along with giving insight into which strategies look the most attractive given current market dynamics
- Introducing investors to the select few hedge funds that have made it through our due diligence process
- Helping investors to identify high quality hedge funds in strategies in which they are interested

Agecroft Partners is a licensed broker-dealer, registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and is a member of The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA), member SIPC and a member of The National Futures Association (NFA).

Competitive Advantages

Quality of Hedge Funds

Agecroft Partners is highly selective of the hedge funds we represent. We utilize an institutional due diligence process to narrow the broad universe of hedge fund managers down to the select few we ultimately represent. It is Agecroft's objective to partner with the highest quality hedge funds possible that have clearly defined investment processes and risk controls, solid pedigrees of investment team, and strong historical performance. Ultimately, the reputation of a third party marketing firm is based on the quality of the hedge fund managers it represents.

Industry Reputation

Agecroft Partners is a global, award-winning hedge fund consulting and marketing firm that has won over 30 awards as the Hedge Fund Marketing firm of the year. Agecroft strives to be a thought leader in the hedge fund industry and frequently writes white papers relative to trends they have identified by leveraging the knowledge they gain through the thousands of investors they are in contact with on a regular basis. Additionally, Agecroft has emerged as one the most sought after firms by industry conferences and the media for the company's views on the hedge fund marketplace and institutional investors. Members of the Agecroft Partners team have spoken at over 100 alternative investment conferences, have appeared in hundreds of industry articles and are regular guests on business television including Bloomberg, CNBC, Fox Business News, Reuters Insider and CCTV.

Founder's Experience

Don Steinbrugge's achievements over his 30 year career in institutional investment management sales include serving as the head of sales for one of the world's largest hedge funds and institutional investment management firms; Don was a founding principal of Andor Capital Management, which was formed when he and a number of his associates spun out of Pequot Capital Management. At Andor he was Head of Sales, Marketing, and Client Service and was a member of the firm's Operating Committee. When he left Andor, the firm was ranked by assets under management as the 2nd largest hedge fund firm in a survey by Absolute Return Magazine. Prior to his stint at Pequot, Don was a Managing Director and Head of Institutional Sales for Merrill Lynch Investment Managers, which at the time was one of the largest investment managers in the world ranked by assets under management. Don was also Global Head of Institutional Sales and member of the executive committee for NationsBank Investment Management (now Bank of America Capital Management).

Don is a member of the Investment Committee for The City of Richmond Retirement System, a member of the Board of Directors for the Hedge Fund Association and a member of the Board of Directors of ChildSavers Foundation. In addition he is a former 2 term Board of Directors member of the University of Richmond's Robins School of Business, The Science Museum of Virginia Endowment Fund, The Richmond Ballet (The State Ballet of Virginia), Lewis Ginter Botanical Gardens, and the Richmond Sports Backers.

Quality of Sales Team

Our partners' goal is to have in depth product knowledge of the funds we represent and to be able to articulate their investment processes as well as our managers. The professionals at the firm average over 15 years of industry experience. A majority of our partners have worked for a multi-billion dollar alternative investment firms before joining Agecroft.

Strong Knowledge of the Institutional Marketplace

Our Partners have met with a majority of the largest US pension funds, endowments, foundations and institutional consulting firms during their careers. A significant number of these investors have been clients of theirs in the past. In addition, our sales team has significant relationships at a senior level throughout the fund of funds, insurance company and family office market places. Our combined efforts have resulted in the creation of a proprietary database of more than 30,000 industry contacts.

Agecroft's Organizational Philosophy

We believe the most successful way to raise assets over time is by maintaining a stellar reputation in the industry based on integrity, trust and knowledge. We always simultaneously consider the best interest of the manager and the investor. We represent only what we perceive as the highest quality funds. We limit the number of funds we represent in order to maintain a high level of product technical knowledge. We implement a focused, tailored marketing approach for each firm we represent and work in partnership with our clients to help them effectively grow their business.

Selection of Investment Managers

The reputation and credibility of our firm is dependent on being highly selective of the firms we represent. As a result we implement an institutional process in selecting managers including the following steps:

1. Maintaining a reputation as a leader in third party marketing firm industry. In a highly competitive marketplace, this helps to differentiate Agecroft from peers and improves the probability that the highest quality hedge funds looking for marketing support will choose our firm. It also affords us access to institutional quality investors who trust our reputation and process and see us as an additional screen for their process.
2. Sourcing managers. In evaluating hedge fund managers we begin by first casting as wide a net as possible and then pursuing four key areas to build a proprietary universe of thousands of managers with the ultimate goal to narrow that number to approximately half a dozen managers to represent. These 4 areas include:
 - a. Direct contact by hedge fund managers: Because of our strong brand in the market place we have a constant flow of hedge funds contacting us to represent them. We don't take this lightly, we try to get back with each one and provide constructive criticism even if they are not a short-term fit.
 - b. Hedge fund referrals: We have developed strong relationships with many institutional investors, prime brokers and other service providers who use similar criteria to evaluate hedge fund managers. These relationships are a valuable resource in identifying high quality managers for us on a regular basis.
 - c. Research: We review many of the leading industry publications and attend industry conferences with a look out for high quality managers.
 - d. Hedge fund databases: The hedge fund market place is inefficient due to the lack of reliable information on managers. All hedge fund databases are missing a significant number of hedge funds. As a result we continually review multiple databases for potential managers and discuss candidates internally to determine if further due diligence is warranted.

3. Quantitative screening of managers. We use quantitative screens to narrow the universe of hedge funds in order to prioritize further research efforts. Some of the factors we typically focus on include:
 - a. Assets under management of at least $75 million in strategy.
 - b. Performance that ranks near the top of their strategy peer group.
 - c. High sharpe and sortino ratios compared to their peer group.
 - d. Low historical performance drawdowns compared to their peer group.
 - e. Correlations to a major market index given their investment strategy.
 - f. Performance characterized by quantifiable alpha and its repetitiveness.
4. Qualitative screening of managers. We analyze each firm based on multiple variables which include:
 - a. Top down analysis: Is it a strategy we believe will do well going forward given the current economic environment? We do not chase performance.
 - b. Quality of firm: A review of the organization with an eye toward appropriate staffing, infrastructure, reputation and commitment to reinvestment in the firm necessary to support growth.
 - c. Quality of investment team: Pedigree, industry knowledge, experience, reputations, and the continuity of key investment staff.
 - d. Review of investment philosophy and process: We must understand what inefficiencies in the market place they are focused on and what their edge is in taking advantage of these inefficiencies.
 - e. Risk controls: This includes understanding their exposure to current and potential risks in their portfolio in addition to maximum limits on leverage, liquidity and concentration as well as quantitative risk controls.
 - f. Service providers and fund terms.

5. Meeting with portfolio manager: Once a manager has made it through our quantitative and qualitative screening process a senior member of the firm is assigned to meet with the portfolio manager and other senior people within the hedge fund organization. Often this part of the process requires multiple meetings.
6. All senior members of team speak with portfolio manager: This could either be structured as a conference call or on-site meeting. After the meeting/conference call any senior members of our team have the ability to veto a manager and all members communicate their assessment of the manager. The output from this meeting is used to create a manager quality score from 1 to 9 which is then included in a proprietary hedge fund ranking system. Those managers who rank near the top are then engaged in contract discussions.
7. Market feedback/Operational due diligence: We contact all service providers to confirm the organization is a client in good standing and has no outstanding issues.
8. Continual re-evaluation of manager: Once a manager is brought on to our platform we receive constant feedback from the thousands of investors we reach out to on a monthly basis. This feedback is communicated to the managers to help improve their offering. In addition, we are constantly reviewing this information for any signal there could be potential issues with a manager.

Investors should perform their own independent due diligence on a hedge fund before investing.

Hedge Fund Consulting and Marketing Strategy

Agecroft Partners believes there are three critical steps involved in order for a hedge fund to be successful in raising assets in today's competitive environment. These include the quality of the fund offering, the investor's perception of the quality of the fund offering, and their marketing and sales strategy. Leveraging our founder's experience in running sales for some of the largest investment firms in the world, Agecroft is uniquely qualified to help hedge funds through each aspect of this process.

- 1. Quality of the hedge fund offering The first step in the process is utilizing our institutional due diligence process to analyze the quality of the product offering across each of the evaluation factors investors use to select hedge funds, which are discussed in the "selection of managers" section of our website. We will then provide feedback on potentially enhancing any areas of weakness. For hedge fund clients we help raise assets for this is an ongoing process as we get feedback from the market place.
- 2. High quality marketing message Many high quality hedge funds have difficulty raising assets because they do a poor job of articulating their message to the marketplace. The marketplace is highly competitive and hedge fund investors use a process of elimination in selecting hedge funds. This typically begins by screening the thousands of hedge funds in the market place, meeting with a couple hundred and hiring a select few each year. Hedge fund performance tends to be a quantitative screen to eliminate a majority of managers, but once performance has reached a certain hurdle its weighting in the evaluation process is less important than most managers realize. It only takes one poorly worded answer to get a firm eliminated from consideration.

It is Agecroft's objective to work with hedge funds to perfect their marketing message in order to ensure that the market's perception of the firm is equal to reality. This requires a consistently delivered, concise and linear marketing message that identifies the differential advantages across each of the evaluation factors investors use to select hedge funds. It is important that the marketing message is consistently integrated throughout all the firm's mediums of communication, including oral presentations, written materials, due diligence questionnaires and quarterly letters, and their website. A well prepared and accurate marketing presentation eliminates inconsistencies and helps foster a level of integrity when interfacing with potential investors.

3. Marketing and sales strategy The most successful marketing and sales strategies are well thought out and are very process oriented. Agecroft works in partnership with our clients to ensure that they receive the assistance that is necessary to grow their business effectively and to maximize their time in focusing on doing what they do best: managing money. In order to maximize the probability of success, Agecroft adds value in the following ways:

A. Industry reputation The industry reputation of a hedge fund marketing firm has a direct impact on investors perceptions of the hedge fund organizations they represent. Agecroft's brand in the market place enhances the credibility of managers they represent and significantly improves access to institutional investors often at senior levels.

B. Identifying who to contact The hedge fund industry investor base is highly inefficient. Public databases of family offices are of poor quality. It is challenging to identify which pension funds, endowments, foundations, insurance companies and sovereign wealth funds are making direct hedge fund investments, whether or not they use a consultant for hedge fund investments, and what type of relationship they have with their consultant. Agecroft's team has created one of the largest proprietary databases in the industry, and has developed strong relationships with investors with whom they are in frequent contact on a global basis.

- C. Screen for suitability with manager’s strategy and investment style Agecroft Partners’ number one objective is to maximize the time of both the investor and manager. Our goal is to ensure that investors with whom we arrange meetings for our hedge fund clients are well screened for their interest in the strategy. The same is true for investors, we do not put pressure on investors to take a meeting, we only set up meetings with investors that show interest in meeting with our hedge fund clients.
- D. Develop tailored follow-up plan for each prospect Agecroft understands that each prospect is unique and has different due diligence requirements along with short and long term needs for their portfolios. Agecroft strives to get detailed feedback from each prospect and then develops a follow-up strategy to help investors through each step of their due diligence process.
